

Injured Survivors of COVID-19 Vaccines Express Regret and Seek Help

"If you've taken the shot, I pray that Allah will lessen the effect of that shot because it was designed to harm you, your ability to reproduce yourself. But if you ask Allah to save you from what you did against yourself, call him by the Name 'Allah, Who Came in the Person of Master Fard Muhammad,' and ask him 'in the Name of the Honorable Elijah Muhammad' and I do believe, even if you've made that mistake, He'll save you from the mistake that you made."

—The Honorable Minister Farrakhan "The Swan Song" February 27, 2022

by Charlene Muhammad
National Correspondent
@sischarlene

On August 4, South Africa's health regulator reported "a causal link between the death of an individual and Johnson & Johnson's COVID-19 vaccine, the first time such a direct link has been made in the country," reported Reuters.com. The deceased, whose identity remains undisclosed, suffered the rare neurological disorder Guillain-Barre Syndrome soon after being given J&J's Janssen vaccine, after which they were put on a ventilator and later died, according to senior scientists during a news conference. "At the time of illness, no other cause for the Guillain-Barre Syndrome (GBS) could be identified," said Professor Hannelie Meyer.

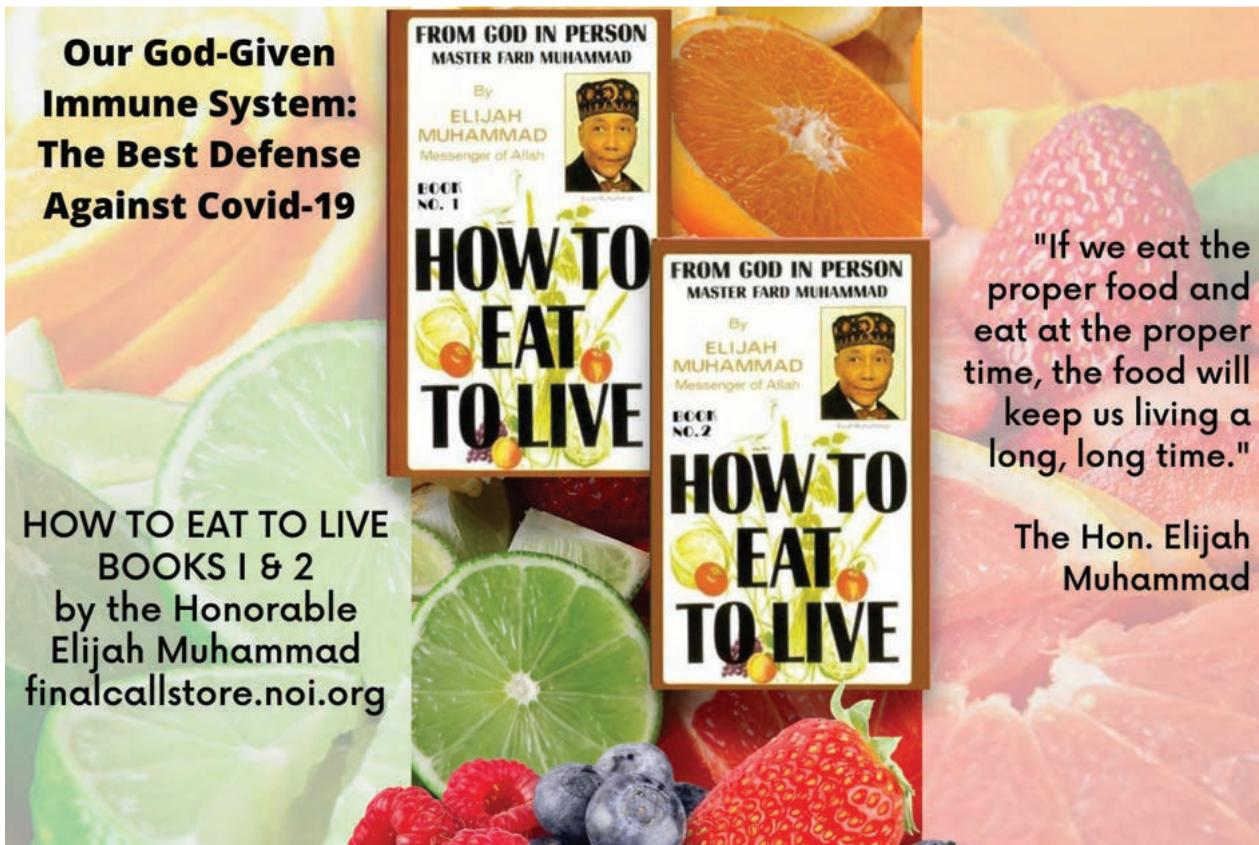

In July of 2021, U.S. authorities added a new warning to a factsheet saying data suggested there was an increased risk of GBS in the six (6) weeks following the J&J shot. At the time it noted 100 preliminary reports of GBS in vaccine recipients, including 95 serious cases and one reported death.

Meanwhile, a growing number of vaccine recipients are expressing post-jab regrets. Some have long ago recovered from a bout with coronavirus, but one year later are still grappling with severe harmful effects of the shot.

One member of this tragic group told The Final Call that within eight (8) hours of receiving Pfizer's COVID-19 injection on April 12, 2021, she woke up from sleep to a nightmare. Shiara DeLoach of Houston, Texas, was paralyzed. Over the next year, she said, she struggled to regain use of her body, despite horrific treatment by healthcare providers. At first, she could only move her eyes. Then, just her head. "I saw my phone on the nightstand and had to cry myself to sleep, praying to God, because I couldn't reach it," said Ms. DeLoach. "I have a regret, because they're not being honest about this vaccine, whether it's Moderna or Pfizer. If they would have been honest and said there's a possibil-

Our God-Given Immune System: The Best Defense Against Covid-19

HOW TO EAT TO LIVE BOOKS 1 & 2
by the Honorable Elijah Muhammad finalcallstore.noi.org

"If we eat the proper food and eat at the proper time, the food will keep us living a long, long time."

The Hon. Elijah Muhammad

Dr. Judy Mikovits Photo: Final Call file

Dr. Pierre Kory Photo: Final Call file

Paul Marik Photo: Youtube

Dr. Christina Parks Photo: Final Call file

ity that you can end up permanently paralyzed, partially paralyzed, or you can end up dead or whatever, there's no way in the world I would have taken the injection," she stated.

She took the shot, because she caught COVID and spent a gruesome four days in the hospital in January 2021. But 20 minutes after the injection, she complained of pain in her shoulder, neck and center of her head. Ultimately, she lost 75% mobility on her right side, along with tremors. "They have snatched my commercial driver's license. I had a Class A truck driver's license for over 30 years, over 200 million miles safe driving, accident-free. There's a whole lot of stuff I've lost," she said. "Do I recommend people go out and get this injection? No! But you have to make your own decision. I feel that you should at least keep your immune system built up and very clean. Take the necessary precautions, because it has already been proven that this vaccine is not the answer."

Continued on page 9

Injured Survivors

Continued from page 8

She chose hyperbaric chamber (oxygen) therapy, turning to Sister Eugenia Muhammad, owner of Jewelryapy, who created a custom bracelet that addressed what she felt were Ms. DeLoach's most important issues—detoxing the body, brain and nervous system of the vaccine. Within 2-3 days of wearing the bracelet, Ms. DeLoach said she was moving areas and parts of her body which she hadn't been able to move in a year. "It's been great! I can tell the difference! ... I'm doing 80% better than what I've done all year, because I still have weakness and stiffness on this right side," she stated.

"I am helping her to reverse the effects of COVID, first and foremost, by Allah's Grace & Permission and with His Guidance. I used gemstones, which have therapeutic properties, to help restore balance in the chakras (energy centers that correlate to the endocrine/glandular systems) of her body," Ms. Muhammad told The Final Call in a written statement.

(Important Note: The Nation of Islam has not researched the specific treatment mentioned in this article; this is a report regarding the harm from the vaccines.)

We are also reporting what a vaccine-injured person states she has done to overcome specific adverse effects and what has worked for them.)

As to treating effects of the virus, "If you do get sick, you call us. We've got the therapy," stated the Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan, in his message, "The Swan Song," on Saviours' Day, February 27, 2022.

The Nation of Islam recommends Ivermectin, Nigella Sativa (also known as Black Cumin Seed or Black Seed Oil) and an antiseptic gargle mouthwash as anti-viral and antiseptics prevention and treatments in its "COVID-19 Practical Steps for Self-Care: What You Can Do to Protect Yourself" initiative. Strengthen your God-given immune system by getting plenty of fresh air and exercise. Take vitamins D3 and C, Quercetin, and Zinc. Above all, follow the dietary regimen given to us in How To Eat To Live (Books 1 and 2), by the Honorable Elijah Muhammad.

In addition to the anti-parasitic drug Ivermectin, cited as number three in the Front Line COVID-19 Critical Care (FLCCC) Alliance's post-vaccine treatment protocols, Dr. Christina Parks, who has a Ph.D. in Cellular and Molecular Biology, said getting the gut microbiomes working is a crucial first step. That can be done simply at home, just by eating some soup, she stated.

She also recommends cumulative steps to build the immune system, such as taking Vitamin D, Magnesium salt baths, even getting cool morning sunlight.

"God already designed our bodies to heal. We're just trying to give them what they need. And since everybody's a little different, sometimes that can be complex," added Dr. Parks, founder of the Vaccine Injury Treatment Alliance (VITA).

The FLCCC, founded by pulmonary and critical care specialists Drs. Pierre Kory and Paul Marik, lists daily intermittent fasting as number one on their I-RECOVER Post-Vaccine Treatment list, because it helps breakdown and eliminate the spike protein. "It's likely that ivermectin and intermittent fasting act synergistically to rid the body of the spike protein," the online protocol indicates.

Another big find by FLCCC are second generation antihistamines, such as over-the-counter Zyrtec (used for allergy symptoms) according to Dr. Parks.

Paximune (Alpha Interferon) and Suramin (synthetic drug used in the treatment of sleeping sickness) would have stopped COVID, said Dr. Judy Mikovits, a Ph.D. in biochemistry and molecular biology.

The problem is Suramin, which was used to recover children with autism, is no longer made, according to Dr. Parks. "When they found out it worked, they stopped making it," she said. She predicts Satanic forces may try to stop Ivermectin and Hydroxychloroquine the same way, but luck-

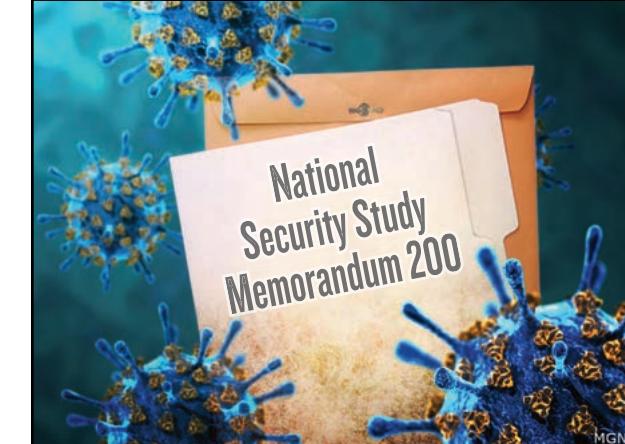

Shiara DeLoach

Vitamin D Photo: MGN Online

'During "The Swan Song," Minister Farrakhan told Black people not to take the "vaccine," before it was made. "I told you all, 'don't take that vaccine.' Wait a minute! Before the vaccine was made, I warned us in the Name of Allah that this was a death plot and before I went there, I told you of a national security memo by the former Secretary of State Kissinger that they had to kill or cull 2 to 3 billion people from the Earth. And Gates and Melinda ... the way to get rid of 2 to 3 billion people was to offer you a vaccine." '

ily, both are in lots of countries worldwide. Still, the wicked could apply global pressure, she added.

"These are 100-year-old essential medicines, and they knew this when they continued to weaponize the virus to evade the stronger," said Dr. Mikovits, who is Caucasian. She explained, Black people have a stronger immune system because their Vitamin D sensors act as amplifiers, but in White people, they act as resistors.

Minister Farrakhan saved millions of members of the Nation of Islam just by saying no, Dr. Mikovits emphasized.

During "The Swan Song," Minister Farrakhan told Black people not to take the "vaccine," before it was made. "I told you all, 'don't take that vaccine.' Wait a minute! Before the vaccine was made, I warned us in the Name of Allah that this was a death plot and before I went there, I told you of a national security memo by the former Secretary of State Kissinger that they had to kill or cull 2 to 3 billion people from the Earth. And Gates and Melinda ... the way to get rid of 2 to 3 billion people was to offer you a vaccine," the Minister said.

"I met that man, and that's a Godly man! And I may well be a Christian, but I'm not telling him what to believe. That's not the man everybody tells you he is," Dr. Mikovits strongly declared.

Nation of Islam
Research Group

DePopulation Briefs

"Before the vaccine was made, I warned us in the Name of Allah that this was a death plot....The way to get rid of two to three billion people [is] to offer you a vaccine."

—The Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan, Swan Song

$10.3 Million Settlement for Vaccine Mandate Abuse of Healthcare Workers

Chicago's North Shore University Health System agreed to a $10.3 million settlement to more than 500 current and former healthcare workers who were unlawfully discriminated against and denied religious exemptions from the COVID shot mandate.

According to Children's Health Defense, "This is a historic, first-of-its-kind class action settlement against a private employer who unlawfully denied hundreds of religious exemption requests to COVID-19 shots."

As part of the settlement agreement, North-Shore will also change its unlawful "no religious accommodations" policy to make it consistent with the law, and to provide religious accommodations in every position across its numerous facilities.

In addition, employees who were terminated because of their religious refusal of the COVID shots will be eligible for rehire if they apply within 90 days of the final settlement approved by the court, and they will retain their previous seniority level.

Chief Litigation Counsel Horatio G. Mihet said: "This settlement should also serve as a strong warning to employers across the nation that they cannot refuse to accommodate those with sincere religious objections to forced vaccination mandates."

"#Vaccine Injuries" Trends on Twitter

Bad news for Big Pharma as a conversation they have been desperately trying to suppress takes over the Twitter landscape.

For the many who have been maimed by the "vaccines" and for the friends and families of the dead, social media have become the town square, where they can post their disastrous experiences after they or their loved ones have taken the poison serum.

The "fact-checkers" are working overtime to come up with ways to deny the undeniable fact that COVID-19 "vaccines" are causing injuries and deaths on a massive scale. The CDC is underreporting that the "vaccines" are the probable cause of 29,790 DEATHS, 170,151 HOSPITALIZATIONS, 4,889 MISCARRIAGES, and 15,973 Heart Attacks—and many victims of the COVID shot are fearlessly speaking out on social media.

No one Questions Pfizer's Multiple Felonies

For two and a half years the health of the world has been simply handed over to the marketing division of the major pharmaceutical companies—a.k.a. the governments of the world. They emptied their treasuries and used their awesome power to destroy all who would question their authority to force their snake oil into the arms of all Americans.

But just who are these medical gangsters? No one asks Pfizer's C.E.O. Albert Bourla just how, with his company's history of felonies and failed drugs and "vaccines," they have been given control of America. Here's a brief glimpse of Pfizer's rap sheet:

- Pfizer received the biggest fine in U.S. history as part of a $2.3 billion plea deal with federal prosecutors for mis-promoting medicines (Bextra, Celebrex) and paying kickbacks to compliant doctors.
- In the 1990s, Pfizer was involved in defective heart valves that led to the deaths of more than 100 people. Pfizer had deliberately misled regulators about the hazards. The company paid a $10.75 million settlement.
- Pfizer paid more than $60 million to settle a lawsuit over Rezulin, a diabetes medication that caused patients to die from acute liver failure.
- In 2004, Pfizer paid $430 million to settle criminal charges that it had bribed doctors to prescribe its epilepsy drug Neurontin for indications for which it was not approved.
- In 2011, a jury found Pfizer committed racketeering fraud in its marketing of the drug Neurontin. Pfizer agreed to pay $142.1 million to settle the charges.
- Pfizer disclosed that it had paid nearly 4,500 doctors and other medical professionals some $20 million for speaking on Pfizer's behalf.
- In 2012, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission reached a $45 million settlement with Pfizer over charges it had bribed overseas doctors and other healthcare professionals to increase foreign sales.
- Pfizer was sued in a U.S. federal court for using Nigerian children as human guinea pigs, without the children's parents' consent. Pfizer paid $75 million to settle in Nigerian court for using a dangerous experimental antibiotic, Trovan, on the children.

Despite this horrifying record of worldwide poisonings in the name of profit, only ONE leader among us warned us to stay away from their vaccines and drugs—THE HONORABLE MINISTER LOUIS FARRAKHAN.

"They're...now plotting to give seven billion five hundred million people a vaccination. Dr. Anthony Fauci, Bill Gates and Melinda, you want to depopulate the earth? What the hell gives you that right? Who are you to sit down with your billions and talk about who can live and who should die? That's why your world is coming to an end quickly because you have sentenced billions to death. But God is now sentencing you to the death that you are sentencing to others."

—The Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan

Vaccine Corner

The following excerpts are from Vaccines, Autoimmunity, and the Changing Nature of Childhood Illness (2018), by Thomas Cowan, MD

[...] I was running from Dr. Kuehl, my pediatrician and a friend of my parents, who was trying to give me my shots. My counterstrategy, starting around the age of three, was to run for the bathroom as soon as I entered his office. Since reasoning with me never worked, Dr. Kuehl tried to forcibly pry me loose, but he was left so weak from childhood polio—or, more likely, from a devastating neurotoxicity that was mistaken for polio—that he was no match for an intensely willful kid whose every cell was directed toward the goal of noncompliance....

'This battle went on for years. Every time my mother told me I was going to the doctor's office, it felt like a fight for survival. Sometimes we never even made it out of the driveway....

"I see in my younger self a boy who was [...] correct in intuiting that there was something wrong about vaccines—even beyond the momentary pain that probably guided my response when I was three or four, and even though the number of shots I received (or was supposed to receive) was far fewer than the fifty doses that American children now typically receive before the age of six and the sixty-nine doses of sixteen vaccines they receive by the age of eighteen.

"And I now realize how correct that young boy was to distrust even those who were ostensibly dedicated to his well-being."

2

"As I live, my desire is to destroy the so-called medical profession, because it is not a profession of healing; it is a profession of drugs."

—The Most Honorable Elijah Muhammad

'By eating one (1) meal a day, you will not be always paying doctor bills and drugstore bills for prescriptions. Eat one (1) meal a day and eat the proper food. Do not try to eat everything that is edible.'

—The Most Honorable Elijah Muhammad

43% of Parents 'Definitely' Won't Vaccinate Young Kids for COVID, Survey Says

A survey by the Kaiser Family Foundation (KFF) finds that 43% of U.S. parents of children under 5 will "definitely not" give their child a COVID-19 vaccine even though the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has granted Emergency Use Authorization for "vaccines" for children ages 6 months to 5 years old.

graphic: ChildrensHealthDefense.org

The KFF survey found that 27% of parents said they would "wait and see," while another 13% said they would have their children vaccinated only if required to do so for school or childcare.

Even parents who were vaccinated against COVID-19 said they would not give permission for their youngest children to get vaccinated.

When asked why, parents cited "concerns about the newness of the vaccine and not enough testing or research, concerns over side effects and worries over the overall safety of the vaccines."

American History of Medical Racism & Savagery

In 1946, Hitler's doctors were tried in Nuremberg for medical atrocities they committed on prisoners. But just 26 years later the pharmaceutical industry in America was doing more than 90 percent of its experimental testing on prisoners. The benefit of having a captive, controlled, and mostly Black population of society's throw-aways was simply irresistible to them.

After the Nazi trials the medical world outlawed experiments on humans without their consent. But the American medical establishment rejected the Code as "a good code for barbarians but an unnecessary code for ordinary physicians-scientists."

The COVID-19 VACCINES: "We Have No RIGHT to Trust Them."

Many countries are now reporting sudden declines in live birth rates

Dr. Joseph Mercola reports that COVID jabs are now shown to impact both male and female fertility. Early on in the pandemic, doctors warned that the chemicals the government was forcing on the population called "vaccines" would directly affect the reproductive organs. Of course, any effective depopulation program targets the reproductive system of the group to be eliminated. And this is exactly what appears to be happening—via chemical castration.

There is credible evidence, writes Dr. Mercola, "that the COVID shots may cross-react with syncytin and reproductive genes in sperm, ova and placenta in ways that might impair reproductive outcomes." He quotes molecular biologist Dr. Janci Chunn Lindsay, Ph.D., who warns, "We could potentially be sterilizing an entire generation."

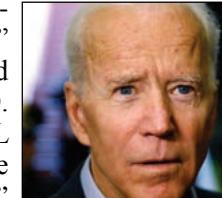

According to one recent investigation, 42% of women with regular menstrual cycles said they bled more heavily than usual after vaccination. Other recent research has found the Pfizer COVID jab impairs semen concentration for about three months. Miscarriages, fetal deaths and stillbirths have also risen after the rollout of the COVID shots. In November 2021, Lions Gate Hospital in North Vancouver, British Columbia (BC), delivered 13 stillborn babies in a 24-hour period, and all of the mothers had received the COVID jab.

Many countries are now reporting sudden declines in live birth rates, including Germany, the U.K., Taiwan, Hungary and Sweden. In the five countries with the highest COVID jab uptake, fertility has dropped by an alarming average of 15.2%, whereas the five countries with the lowest COVID jab uptake have seen an average decline of just 4.66%.

[Read more at: <https://www.lewrockwell.com/2022/07/joseph-mercola/covid-jabs-impact-both-male-and-female-fertility/>]

Biden Gets COVID—Again and Again and...

Pres. Joe Biden spread the egregious lie that "You're not going to get COVID if you have these vaccinations." He said his patience with "vaccine hesitancy" was "wearing thin," insinuating that if people didn't get the shot, they'd face serious repercussions. Now Biden has become living proof of TOTAL "vaccine" failure. His first shot FAILED. His second shot FAILED. His first booster FAILED. His second booster FAILED. After ALL that "protection," he got COVID. He went into "strict isolation procedures" and continued masking. Biden took PAXLOVID, yet another untested Pfizer drug now being sold as "treatment." That drug FAILED, and Biden tested positive again!

Despite Biden and Fauci and Harris now being the poster children for vaccine failure, their government is still forcing needles into the military, federal employees, medical workers, and foreign visitors.

Meanwhile, the world marvels at the Africans, who overwhelmingly rejected the tricks and pricks of the West and have avoided the suffering and death resulting from their COVID policies.

Twitter's SAMANTHA MARIKA's 'NEVER FORGET' Rant Goes Viral

Never forget what they want you to forget, because already they're starting to backtrack. Already they're starting to say, "I never said things" that they clearly did say. Fauci's out there saying, "I never said we should be locked down." Never forget that he did say we should be locked down.

Samantha Marika @samanthamarika1 · Jul 27
Never forget. BE MAD. GET LOUD. You have every right..

Never forget that he did say that you and your children should muzzle yourselves to something that clearly never worked.

Never forget that they never let us listen to opposing doctor views, listen to opposing science views.

Never forget that they blocked, censored, and deleted us for speaking out against this.

Never forget that they created this. And Never Forget that the thing that they created when it was making your loved ones sick, when it was making your loved ones die, and you suggested Hydroxychloroquine and you suggested Ivermectin, they laughed at you, they mocked you, they ridiculed you and they prevented them from using it.

Never forget that they said, "This was the solution; this was going to give herd immunity; this was going to solve the entire problem." And now what are they saying? "We knew it wasn't going to work."

Never forget that you lost your job for refusing to take something that they knew wasn't going to work.

Never forget, even worse, you took something that they knew wasn't going to work just to keep your job and at best you're going to get the thing that it was supposed to prevent; at worst, you're going to get serious side effects. [...] If we stay silent and we don't speak up, then, yes, this will go down as another 9/11, this will go down as another weapons of mass destruction, this will go down as another "oops, I prescribed too many opioids." Wake up!

"Never forget that they blocked, censored, and deleted us for speaking out against this."

THE REVOLVING CYCLE OF BLACK MEDICAL ABUSE AND WHAT MUST BE DONE ABOUT IT

by Anisah Muhammad
Contributing Writer
@MuhammadAnisah

The United States of America was in a Great Depression when residents of a small, rural Black city were targeted to be part of an experiment that would have detrimental effects on the Black community through the generations.

In 1930, Macon County, Alabama, was 82 percent Black. Its county seat is Tuskegee, home to the infamous, 40-year “Tuskegee Study of Untreated Syphilis in the Negro Male.” The study took place between 1932 and 1972, but America has a history of medical abuse and experimentation on Black bodies that far surpasses those 40 years and that is still ongoing today.

Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment

The United States Public Health Service wanted to study the “natural history” of syphilis, despite the disease being in America since at least the 1490s, according to researchers.

“We already knew what happened to people that didn’t get treated for their syphilis. That was called history,” Dr. Michelle Drew, a certified nurse, midwife and executive director of Ubuntu Black Family Wellness, told The Final Call. She said she can’t understand the intentional cruelty of what took place. “The only answer to that is that you didn’t really believe that those men and their wives and their children and all the people that would be impacted by their disabilities and their deaths from untreated syphilis were human,” she said.

The Public Health Service collaborat-

In this 1950s photo made available by the National Archives, a man included in a syphilis study has blood drawn in Alabama. For 40 years starting in 1932, medical workers in the segregated South withheld treatment for Black men who were unaware they had syphilis, so doctors could track the ravages of the illness and dissect their bodies afterward. Photo: National Archives/AP ed with Tuskegee Institute, now Tuskegee University, and conducted the study at the school’s hospital. Initially, 600 Black men signed up for the study, and 399 had syphilis. Only, the men were told they were being treated for bad blood and were given aspirin, iron and placebos as treatment.

“I didn’t know nothing, just a country boy,” said Charles Pollard, one of the last survivors of the study, in a 1993 documentary titled “The Deadly Deception.” “They said they was gon’ treat us. They just said bad blood,” he said.

Paying for burial costs and insurance was one of many of the free services researchers offered to the Black men who participated.

The true motive of the study was documented in 1933 letter exchanges with statements such as, “As I see it, we have no further interest in these patients until they die” and “... the main object of the present activities is bringing men to necropsy.”

The men were left untreated for syphilis, despite the wide use of penicillin in 1943 and the standard treatment of it in 1947. The study was only terminated after media coverage caused widespread outrage. But by that time, the damage was done. One-hundred and twenty-eight Black men died of syphilis or related complications, 40 spouses contracted the disease, and 19 children were born with it.

In 2016, Marcella Alsan, then-professor with Stanford Medical School’s Center for Health Policy/Primary Care Outcomes and Research, and Marianne Wanamaker, associate professor of economics at the University of Tennessee, found that the Tuskegee syphilis experiment is correlated with increased medical mistrust and mortality. In a working research paper, they estimated that the study reduced life expectancy in Black men 45 years and older by more than a year. They also wrote that the study accounted for 35 percent of the life expectancy gap between Black men and White men in 1980.

“We’re now 50 years from the time that the study was made public and ended but (90) years from when it began, and we’re still seeing the same things,” Dr. Drew said. “We still know that in the United States, your chances of whether or not you’re going to be born into and live your whole life and die in poverty is the zip code that you live in. And most Black people live in the same zip code that their parents were born in and their parents were born in. And those zip codes were determined by segregation.”

She described the multiple layers of how racism leads into health disparities, including institutional racism such as health facilities closing down in Black rural areas and opening up in wealthy White areas.

Before and beyond Tuskegee

Medical abuse and experimentation of Black bodies can be traced back to the ships transporting enslaved Africans to America.

Continued on page 32

Black medical abuse

Continued from page 4

"Most slave ships had doctors aboard. Though some doctors were professional, many took a cruel approach in treating sick Africans," writes Javonte Anderson, racism and history enterprise reporter for USA Today. "Ill captives could be thrown overboard, and as they were regarded as property, the merchants and owners could collect insurance money. Captives were often forced to take medication or food while being threatened by a whip, cutlass or pistol."

In an article on the history of medical abuses against Black people, he noted that many slave owners used medicine to punish and torture slaves. Enslaved women were forced to undergo reproductive experiments without anesthesia. White medical students used the dead bodies of slaves for medical experimentation.

In 1961, 11 years before the Tuskegee syphilis experiment would end, Civil Rights activist Fannie Lou Hamer went to a hospital to remove a tumor from her uterus and was given a hysterectomy without her knowledge.

"It is for good reason that the Most Honorable Elijah Muhammad said he intends to destroy the medical establishment," said Nation of Islam Student Minister Dr. Wesley Muhammad to The Final Call. "As the medical establishment in general grew up, it grew as an enemy to Black people," he said, stating how clinics and hospitals grew as places of experimentation where Black people were the prime guinea pigs.

Black people in America heavily mistrust the healthcare industry due to the historical and ongoing medical abuses. A 2017 study titled "More than Tuskegee: Understanding Mistrust about Research Participation" documented comments made by Black participants. Those comments included: "Just that awareness [about Tuskegee] is enough to stand up generation after generation"; "You don't know what they are giving you and what they're experimenting on you. They are very secretive. They say one thing and might do another"; and "... a lot of Black people don't ever encounter White people. Whenever I encounter White people, they're coming to take. The only White person in my neighborhood is the insurance man, and he only takes my money."

"Many of the research that's done, once we have the answer, we don't have access to it," Dr. Drew expressed.

Nation of Islam Student Minister Dr. Wesley Muhammad, a researcher with a Ph.D. in Islamic studies, described the White man as a "scientist" and the so-called Negro his "science project."

"The only thing that has changed ... is the White man's technology is greater. His scientific knowledge is more superior,

In this 1950s photo made available by the National Archives, a man included in a syphilis study has blood drawn by a doctor in Alabama. Photo: National Archives via AP

In this 1950s photo made available by the National Archives, men included in a syphilis study stand for a photo in Alabama. For 40 years starting in 1932, medical workers in the segregated South withheld treatment for Black men who were unaware they had syphilis, so doctors could track the ravages of the illness and dissect their bodies afterward. Photo: National Archives via AP, File so he can conduct his experimentation on us, and we not even know it," Student Min. Muhammad explained. "We don't have to go into his clinics, now, to be medically experimented on, scientifically experimented on. He's able to transfer his lab into our homes. So what's changed is he's more sophisticated."

Despite over 400 abusive years, Black people still trust White America because "we don't recognize the threat in our environment. We are prey who believe the predator is our benign friend," Student Min. Muhammad stated.

Black infant and maternal mortality

Dr. Drew has five children. She said by the time she had children, she was college lated to low birthweight and were twice as likely to die from sudden infant death syndrome than White infants, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Office of Minority Health. Black mothers were twice as likely to receive late or no prenatal care compared to White mothers.

A study published at the beginning of this year on gendered racism and maternal mortality found that "Black women's maternal mortality rates were typically double that of White women. Further, Black women's maternal mortality rates in their early twenties aligned with the maternal mortality rates of White women in their mid-thirties or older."

Due to the mortality rates of Black mothers and infants, filmmaker Tonya Lewis Lee co-directed "Aftershock," a documentary released on Hulu in January.

"It became clear that the Black maternal mortality rate is just going up. I mean, it's going up for all of us in this country, but for Black women, it's getting worse," Ms. Lee told Democracy Now in a July interview. "And I really wanted to tell the story of what was happening in the United States around Black women's health. We know that Black women's health and infants' health is the marker of the health of a nation. If mothers aren't doing well, if infants aren't doing well, then none of us can do well."

Dr. Wesley Muhammad noted that the film not only showed Black maternal mortality, but it showed how medical institutions are complicit in Black maternal mortality.

"This doesn't have to happen. That's what I take away from the documentary. The numbers of Black mothers dying postpartum or on a table, if you will, are so unnecessary. If just standard care were given to many of these Black mothers, they would be alive today," he said. "But standard care isn't given. They are treated as experimental subjects."

He described that just "as a White man in a blue officer's uniform is to the Black male, the White man in a White doctor's robe is to the Black female."

Undertreatment for pain

Black people's skin is thicker than White people's skin. At least, that's what White doctors and medical students often believe. A 2016 study titled "Racial bias in pain assessment and treatment recommendations, and false beliefs about biological differences between blacks and whites" examined why Black people are systematically undertreated for pain relative to Whites. Study participants who held false beliefs about biological differences between Blacks and Whites reported lower pain ratings for Black people.

"Half of a sample of White medical students and residents endorsed these beliefs. Moreover, participants who endorsed these beliefs rated the Black (vs. White) patient's pain as lower and made less accurate treatment recommendations," the study says.

Continued on page 33

Black medical abuse

Continued from page 32

Those beliefs included Blacks aging more slowly than Whites, Black people having less sensitive nerve endings, Blacks having smaller brains, Black skin being thicker and Blacks having a less efficient respiratory system.

"They asked all of these different questions, which were some of the things that have literally been said about Black people for hundreds of years, even back to when Thomas Jefferson and Samuel Cartwright wrote a lot of these things that basically justified that there were biological differences between slaves and White people, to justify slavery," Dr. Drew said.

She explained that the medical students and doctors who were saying they believe Black people feel less pain might subscribe a White patient with a narcotic to manage severe pain in their ankle but may give a Black patient Tylenol. As a midwife, she said she also sees that at play in real time. White OBGYNs are more likely to offer White women narcotics for their pain and are more likely to offer Black women over-the-counter medications, she said.

She described pain as a frequent symptom of the complications that are killing Black women.

"So if you've had a C-section and maybe you have internal bleeding, you may be complaining that you're having really, really severe abdominal pain, and that pain is worse than I would expect it to be if you weren't having a complication," she said. "So if somebody doesn't believe you when you say that you're having severe pain, then are they less likely to do the tests that they need to do to diagnose your complication?"

She referenced Serena Williams' case as an example. After the birth of her daughter in 2017 by C-section, the tennis star reported having shortness of breath and alerted a nurse.

"Why would anybody wake up after major surgery and tell a nurse that I have chest pain and they tell her, 'Let me give you some pain medicine, go back to bed. You're just exaggerating,'" Dr. Drew questioned. "Had she not been willing to advocate for herself, she would have been another one of the stories of people who died."

She said that as a midwife, she has noticed that Black women have been seeking her out more over the past few months and years and are intentionally choosing doulas.

"We do see that a lot more people are choosing to come out of the hospital, because it's like, I want a midwife. And I want a Black midwife who looks like me, who is going to listen to me, who's going to respect my choices, who's going to respect my values, who isn't going to disregard me, who's not going to ignore my concerns," she said. "And if going into the hospital is a place where I'm likely to be exposed to violence, then I'm not going to go there."

Dismantling the system

The Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan teaches that the human body itself is its own hospital. "We can cure this body of ills that it has if the person inside the body knows how to connect with the Powerful Being that created it and then makes up his or her mind to live in accord with the Law of Life that sustains it," he said in a lecture on "God's Healing Power."

Dr. Drew described the importance of looking back at things like the Tuskegee study. "As we look to the past, if we forget about it, then we will continue this revolving cycle," she said. "And so, it's really time to dismantle the system and replace it with something else."

Dr. Wesley Muhammad described White Supremacy as an "octopus with many tentacles."

"Every institution that is distinctly American is a tentacle on the octopus of American White Supremacy, whether it is the medical establishment, whether it is the educational system, whether it is the legal system, whether it is entertainment," he said.

He stated that Black people must totally disengage from the octopus of American White Supremacy and that the only way to do that is to separate.

"None of these systems can be tweaked on our behalf," stated Student Min. Muhammad. "They are inherently opposed to the progress of Black people, the way of being of Black life in America, which is the strongest, loudest evidence that there is no solution for this problem of race in America except what God gave, a total and complete separation of the two people," he added.

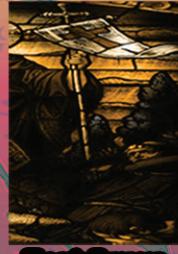

UNDERSTANDING THE ASSAULT ON THE BLACK MAN, BLACK MANHOOD AND BLACK MASCULINITY

by Wesley Muhammad, Ph.D.

In this new book, Dr. Wesley shines light on various aspects of the hidden architecture of White Supremacy's global project of un-manning the Black male and the spoiling of the Black female.

Learn, among other things:

The role European Christian cannibalism, soul harvesting and homosexuality played in the subjugation of Black people during colonial expansion and American slavery, particularly the Black male

How European pseudo-science and then American science went to work to make African peoples and the Black American male "The Lady of the Races."

How the CIA manipulated marijuana and created crack cocaine in order to create Black Zombies in the inner cities

How Presidents Nixon, Reagan, Bush, and Clinton all waged government-funded wars against Black males

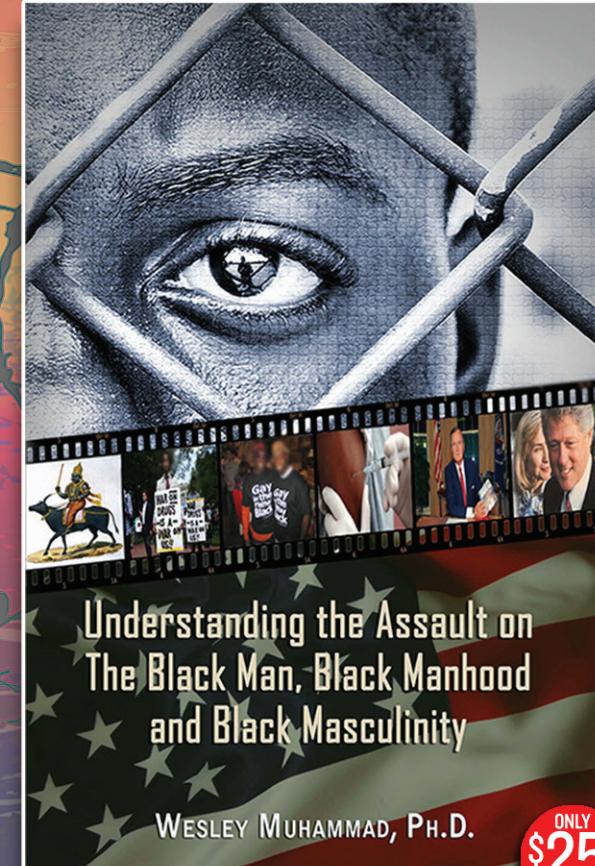

The esoteric and theological background of White Supremacy's Assault on the Black Man

How the inner-city "Thug" and the Black "Sissy" were both scientifically produced

The deeper truth behind the "Autism Conspiracy" against Black boys

Understanding the Assault on The Black Man, Black Manhood and Black Masculinity

WESLEY MUHAMMAD, PH.D.

$25
ONLY
RETAIL PRICE

GET YOUR COPY TODAY!

STORE.FINALCALL.COM or call 866.602.1230 EXT. 200