

CDC Doled Out Hundreds of Millions in Grants to Push Vaccines, Collect Data in Communities of Color—Part 1 of 2

[Section Editor's note: On Saviours' Day 2023, the Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan talked to the world about Pharaoh's "skillful enchanters," who are sent among the righteous to lead them into harm's way. This was clearly in evidence as we watched Blacks of notoriety and influence relentlessly push a dangerous and deadly "vaccine" onto their own people. The 2-part article below by Brenda Baletti, Ph.D., was originally published by The Defender—the Children's Health Defense's News & Views Website, the organization of attorney Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. The article exposes the means and methods used by the government to entice and cajole Blacks, Latinos, and Asians to offer themselves up to Satan's depopulation agenda.]

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) since 2021 has doled out hundreds of millions of dollars in grants for the creation of "culturally tailored" pro-vaccine materials and for training "influential messengers" to promote COVID-19 and flu vaccines to communities of color in every state across the country.

The grants are contingent on grantees assisting the government in the enforcement of "federal orders related to quarantine and isolation"—effectively making the grantees enforcers of U.S. health agencies' recommendations and federal mandates.

Grant recipients also are required to collect community-level data and provide it to the CDC. All of the grants stipulate:

"The recipient is expected to provide to CDC copies of and/or access to COVID-19 data collected with these funds, including but not limited to data related to COVID-19 testing. CDC will specify in further guidance and directives what is encompassed by this requirement."

information" about the COVID-19 vaccine and for training "trusted community voices," such as community-based organizations (CBOs), teachers, faith leaders, local DJs, shop owners and others, to spread the word in formal and informal spaces.

The CDC also awarded money to groups that organized pop-up vaccination clinics in communities of color, which typically have lower vaccination rates.

The money for the grants, now two years into a five-year grant period, come from COVID-19-related federal funding opportunities, such as the Coronavirus Preparedness and Response Supplemental Appropriations Act and the CARES act, according to the grant documents.

Grant recipients must comply with "existing and future directives and guidance" from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), the CDC's parent organization, regarding the control and spread of COVID-19.

In recent congressional hearings on the federal response to COVID-19, CDC Director Dr. Rochelle Walenski underscored that CDC recommendations are not mandates. However, in the case of these grants, financing is conditioned upon compliance.

Several of the grants are awarded to umbrella organizations that then distribute the funding to subgrant awardees. The CDC grant requirements extend to all subgrantees as well.

Much research and many organizations across the country have been dedicated to understanding and overcoming "vaccine hesitancy"—particularly among Latino and African American people —often framing it as a way to fight racial and economic injustice by creating “health equity.”

The medical establishment often blames this “hesitancy” on factors like “misinformation” and past and present trauma inflicted by the medical system, claiming these and other issues confuse people’s thought process—instead of acknowledging that some people reject the vaccines on the basis of informed decision making.

The details of the grants, available on USASpending.gov, reveal a nationwide effort by the CDC to change thinking about COVID-19 and flu vaccines among racial and ethnic groups “experiencing disparity” by bankrolling locally based community organizations, physicians of color and medical associations.

$200 million to spread the CDC message via CBOs

In a request for applications (RFA) with a March 2021 deadline, the CDC announced it would provide four national-level organizations with approximately $10 million per year each over five years to fund and provide technical support to 50-100 CBOs “with strong ties to racial and ethnic minority communities” in order to “increase the range of trusted community voices supporting vaccine education and delivery.”

According to the RFA, “CBOs are the ideal messengers” for the CDC’s message, able to communicate CDC messaging on vaccines to local people in ways the CDC cannot.

But “the federal granting process could prove to be a significant barrier for many small, specialized CBOs with strong community ties to participate in the funding program,” so the CDC is working through intermediary organizations to fund the community organizations.

“Without partnerships, the capacity to build trust and amplify messages in communities would be severely hampered,” the RFA said.

This grant funds grantees to “equip influential messengers” with training and materials, so they can convince people in communities “experiencing racial and ethnic disparities” of the importance of vaccination, increase vaccination opportunities in those communities and establish relationships with local health departments.

The grantees are charged with identifying CBOs with “the credibility, connections, and ingenuity to implement vaccination-related activities to the priority race/ethnic communities experiencing disparities.”

They also provide subgrants and support—via information, trainings and materials—so the organizations can do this work.

The grantees are responsible for collecting data on all of the activities of the CBOs and reporting it to the CDC.

The subgrantees—the CBOs themselves—identify and train “trusted community-level spokespersons” like “faith leaders, teachers, community health workers, radio DJs, local shop owners, and barbers” to communicate the burdens of the flu and COVID-19 and the importance of vaccination through media/social media, faith-based locations, community events and “culturally appropriate venues.”

They also are charged with connecting vaccine providers with places of worship, community organizations, recreation programs, food banks/pantries, schools and colleges/universities, grocery stores, salons/barber shops/beauticians, major employers and other key community institutions to set up temporary and/or mobile flu and COVID-19 vaccination sites, especially in communities experiencing disparities, and advocate that places already providing healthcare also provide flu and COVID-19 vaccines.

The CDC made the $200 million grant opportunity available to only four organizations — the Urban Institute, the CDC Foundation, Community Catalyst and RF Catalytic Capital, part of The Rockefeller Foundation.

The CDC said it identified these four organizations as having the ability to find and appropriately support CBOs across the country.

The CDC Foundation is an independent nonprofit created by Congress to “mobilize philanthropic and private-sector resources” to support the CDC’s work. But in this case, it is using CDC resources to mobilize the private sector.

The Urban Institute is a nonprofit research organization that provides data and evidence to help advance upward mobility and equity, according to its website.

Community Catalyst is a nonprofit organization that seeks to reform the healthcare system to be more equitable. Their executive director, Emily Stewart, is the former vice president of public policy at Planned Parenthood.

The CDC funded only those three organizations, but RF Catalytic Capital implemented a similar privately funded program with nearly 100 CBOs as part of its “Equity First Vaccination Initiative.”

Subgrantees located in African American, Latino, Native American and other communities across the country received grants ranging from $75,000 to over $2 million with most grants averaging between $100,000 and $200,000 per year.

Grantees commit to the activities outlined in the CDC’s RFA, including training local trusted voices, holding events and vaccination clinics and pop-ups to “combat misinformation” and “increase vaccine coverage.”

“Before the vaccine was made, I warned us in the Name of Allah that this was a death plot....The way to get rid of two to three billion people [is] to offer you a vaccine.”

—The Honorable Minister Louis Farrakhan, Swan Song

Florida Surgeon General Joseph Ladapo

No One Should Be Taking COVID Vaccines! They Have A Terrible Safety Profile!

“It’s important to keep in perspective exactly what happened, because one of the things the media, they’re just so brilliant, it’s almost, it’s so sinister how good they are at...recreating reality.”

“The Covid vaccines have a terrible safety profile and I don’t think anybody should take these vaccines. A few weeks ago, a well-known journal called Lancet published a study of mRNA COVID ‘vaccines.’ It shows that people who received that ‘vaccine’ are more likely to contract COVID-19 after seven months than the people who did not.”

Dr. Ladapo reminded the audience that he received a Ph.D. in research science from Harvard medical school, and was then a tenured professor at two medical schools. Ladapo said that he is so disillusioned with the vast anti-science corruption he is now seeing that even though he went to Harvard, “my wife and I [are] not even sure we would send our kids there—they’re indoctrination factories.”

Top Scientist Rebuffed BY Brother With SCIENCE!

In a newly released 2021 video Dr. Anthony Fauci, along with Mayor Muriel Bowser, is seen going door-to-door in a Washington, DC, Black community to push the poison depopulation shot. The video shows them knocking on the door of an unidentified Brother who—not the least bit impressed by the presence of the high & mighty—proceeds to interrogate them about the legitimacy of their “vaccine.”

Fauci meets a Man of Science

“I’m not going to be lining up taking a shot on a vaccination for something that wasn’t clear in the first place,” he states.

Bowser steps in to rescue Fauci—who has NEVER been questioned by actual journalists—and attempts to justify the vaccine and shame the Brother: “The only reason I’m talking to you right now, as close as we are, is that I’ve been vaccinated. If thousands of people like you don’t get vaccinated, you’re going to

‘Worst Public Health Mistakes in History,’ Witness Tells Gov’t COVID Committee

The House Select Subcommittee on the Coronavirus Pandemic presented the testimony of four public health experts, including Dr. Martin Kulldorff, Ph.D., of Boston’s Brigham and Women’s Hospital who described the government’s response as the “worst public health mistakes in history.”

Dr. Martin Makary of Johns Hopkins University said “public health officials have made many tragic mistakes during the pandemic,” including closing schools, masking toddlers, and “pushing boosters for young people.”

Stanford University’s Dr. Jay Bhattacharya asked, “On what empirical basis were schools closed? Did public health decision-makers consider the harms of their policies as thoroughly as their putative benefits?...There’s near-universal agreement that what we did failed.”

Kulldorff said: “The way we dealt with the pandemic was the worst assault on poor people, working Americans, the middle class [since] segregation and the Vietnam War. Lockdown harms, school closures, people not going to medical visits...has killed many Americans and will continue to do so in the next few years.”

let this virus continue to percolate in this country and in this world,” Bowser said.

“Something like the common flu then, right?” the man interrupts, with apparent knowledge that the severity of “this virus” has been shown to be wildly overhyped by Fauci and the media. “When you start talking about paying people to get vaccinated, when you start talking about incentivizing things to get people vaccinated, it’s something else going on with that,” he perceptively points out. “Nine months is definitely not enough for nobody to be taking no vaccination that you all came up with,” he says.

With their photo-op badly failing Fauci and Bowser then walk off as the Brother fearlessly charges that “Your campaign is about fear. It’s about inciting fear in people. You all attack people with fear. That’s what this pandemic is. It’s a fear, it’s fear, this pandemic. That’s all it is.”

What is killing healthy young people? 1 Guess

Edward Dowd was an analyst for the largest corporation in the world—BlackRock. His new book, “Cause Unknown”: The Epidemic of Sudden Deaths, asks and answers what exactly is killing healthy Americans, given that the current president declared the “pandemic” to be over.

Dowd writes, “2020 saw a spike in deaths in America, smaller than you might imagine during a pandemic, some of which could be attributed to COVID and to initial treatment strategies that were not effective. But then, in 2021, the stats people expected went off the rails.” One insurance company shocked the industry when it announced that death in people of working age (18–64) was 40 percent higher than it was before the pandemic. Significantly, the majority of the deaths were not attributed to COVID. For perspective, a 10 percent increase in excess deaths would have been a 1-in-200-year event.

Dowd says, “Ask yourself...How many times in your life did you hear of a performer dropping dead on stage in mid-performance? Your own life experience and intuition will tell you that what you’re about to see is not normal. Or at least it wasn’t normal before 2021.”

Here are two charts from Dowd’s book that explain:

“Dr. Anthony Fauci, Bill and Melinda Gates, you want to depopulate the Earth? What the hell gives you that right? Who are you to sit down with your billions and talk about who can live and who should die?”

1200 colleges without vaccine mandates

Sen. Rand Paul: “They damaged our children”

We now know that many colleges/universities received funding to push the deadly “COVID vaccines” on their staff and students. The pressure they put on students to take vaccines OR participate in twice-weekly testing, wear masks, and attend “re-education” sessions about “vaccine safety” continues to create an extremely stressful experience for students who refused these novel experimental drugs and mandates.

And though many have now dropped mandates (some fearing lawsuits from the vaccine-injured and damage to their reputations), a monitoring organization named No College Mandates estimated that there are still “1000 colleges that mandate primary series vaccines, just under 250 colleges that mandate one booster dose and 21 colleges that specifically mandate the bivalent booster...”

At nocollegemandates.substack.com, the volunteer organization has provided a list of “Colleges That Never Mandated COVID-19 Vaccines...To help you navigate this continued nonsense and avoid the dangers of forced COVID-19 vaccination....All but one of the Kentucky Senator Rand Paul has been a staunch critic of the government’s disastrous response to the alleged “pandemic.” Paul said in a recent interview that the effects of executive lockdown orders were “horrors,” especially for children:

“They damaged our children, particularly the least among us, those who live in poverty, those who have difficult family circumstances....[Lockdowns] did not work. Everybody got COVID eventually, and...in countries like Sweden that didn’t lock down—their kids went to school every day—not one kid died in Sweden. So this [‘effectiveness’ of lockdowns] was a fallacy promoted by Tony Fauci and the establishment of government.”

New York’s Abortion Tourism

Black baby abortion has always been one of the main methods of mass racial DEPOPULATION. The pro-abortion Guttmacher Institute counted more than 930,000 abortions in the U.S. in 2020. Black women account for 38.4% of abortion recipients, the largest share among other racial and ethnic groups.

Florida has Disney World, California has Hollywood, Nevada has Las Vegas, but New York has depopulation services! USA Today reports that New York City bought billboards in three other states to advertise abortion services.

Last November, New York City Mayor Eric Adams rolled out “a first-of-its-kind” “Abortion Access Hub” to connect callers to abortion providers in the city, and he spent hundreds of thousands of dollars advertising the “service” in three other states—Georgia, Florida, and Texas.

colleges on the list below have never had a COVID-19 vaccine mandate indicating they highly value informed consent. These colleges never found it necessary to remove medical freedom and instead empowered community members to decide for themselves what measures to take for personal protection.”

The group has also collected lists of the colleges that pressured and discriminated against their students, who could only exercise their right to bodily autonomy by applying for exemptions. It lists those institutions that “do not accept grants from the federal government or participate in any federal financial-aid or student-loan programs,” and therefore they remain completely autonomous and independent institutions of higher learning.

Canada exposed in Ugandan ‘Tuskegee’ like plot

By Lonnie Kashif
(M.S. Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A major genocidal program, on the order and scale of the Tuskegee syphilis experiments on Blacks in Alabama, has now been exposed and halted in far away Uganda after having been quietly exported to Africa via Canada’s Federal Health Department.

CREDIT FOR the halting of the project goes to Dr. J. Fletcher Robinson, director of Howard University Urban Health Program, who, upon learning that one Dr. Lewis Greenburg of Canada had received authorization to inject 2,000 college students at the Makerere University in Kampala with killed gonococcal bacteria vaccine, sent a letter to the University warning them of the genocidal portends of the project.

Robinson wrote “It is unthinkable that any of us would allow any type of medical experiment on any Black people, let alone our future leaders that are in college.” He pointed out that the Tuskegee experiment in America “represents one of the most inhuman racist acts” and should serve as a warning to the entire Black world.

“The urban areas of Canada and Europe are experiencing a general disease epidemic as serious as anywhere in the world,” Robinson contended. “Why should a European have to travel 7,000 miles to one of the great Black universities to conduct any type of medical experiment?”

THE UNIVERSITY’S response, however, was a near total rebuff to Robinson’s warnings. Mr. A. Wandira, Vice-Chancellor of Makerere University claimed that the vaccine had passed safety trials, nothing unethical was intended and that students, teachers and authorities had “accepted the trial design”.

Wandira replied, “Vaccines against measles, polio—etc., developed in America and Europe have all had trials under African circumstances, as no country is going to rely on results from elsewhere if its circumstances etc., are different.”

Wandira also advised Robinson that the project had incidentally been delayed for one year from the initial date in 1972 and scheduled to begin sometime in 1973.

In March of this year, however, Dr. Robinson received a letter from the Uganda Embassy here in Washington, informing him that the Uganda Minister of Health had called a halt to the project.

THE LETTER, signed by Mustapha Ramathan, Ambassador to Washington, stated that after considerable discussion between the Uganda Ministry of Health and the authorities of Makerere Medical School and the National Research Council of Uganda, “I am pleased to advise that considering the tragedy of the experiment with syphilis referred to in your letter of the 15th of October 1972, the Uganda Minister of Health has decided to stop the experiment.”

Robinson termed the decision “a victory for all Black people and is very much in keeping with the example being set by Uganda on many other political issues.”

Amin’s dramatic expulsion of Asians from his country following his take-over from former President Milton Obote, a popular third-world figure, initially created ripples of panic throughout the continent. However, his apparent doggedness and bold implementation of programs desired by other African heads of state, raised his prestige throughout Africa.

Forbes: Maternal Deaths Spiked in 2021, Especially in Black Women

Deaths of women who died in childbirth or during childbirth spiked in 2021, particularly among Black women, Forbes reports.

With a total of 1,205 dying, it means that deaths jumped nearly 40%; 861 women died of maternal causes in 2021 and 754 in 2019. Among Black women, deaths were 2.6 times that of white women.

While no specific cause was cited, according to Forbes, “higher rates of chronic conditions like diabetes and obesity, a larger proportion of mothers giving birth via cesarean section, a lack of universal healthcare, shortages of maternity care providers and a lack of paid maternity leave are among the factors that have been suggested as contributing towards the increase.”
